Good cause would include issues relating to the completeness of the document (e.g., missing or incomplete pages). Good cause would additionally include the document being used in a manner contrary to a granted motion in limine.

In light of the Court's Order bifurcating certain claims and defenses to be heard at a bench trial, the parties further reserve the right to object to the admission and use of documents during the jury trial on the basis that those documents are properly admissible only in relation to the issues to be tried during the bench trial. In other words, while the parties agree that these documents should be presumed admissible for the purposes of this lawsuit, this stipulation does not mean that the parties agree that each listed document is admissible in both the jury and bench trials.

The parties agree to meet and confer in good faith regarding any disputes about whether there is good cause to dispute the admissibility of a document under the terms of this stipulation, and reserve the right to raise any disputes as to whether the good cause standard is met with regard to a challenged document with the Court prior to the introduction of that document at trial. Stipulating to the admissibility of these documents does not constitute a waiver of any claim or defense.
